

Collectionair

Collectionair is an online platform for collectors, curators and artists offering carefully selected artworks from a few hundred dollars up to $10,000. The company invites curators to organise online exhibitions focusing mainly on artists from “under-represented art scenes” such as Iran, Oman or Mozambique; and enables buyers to browse more than 20 online exhibitions they can buy art from.

At the heart of Collectionair stands the philosophy to give artists and curators from emerging art scenes around the world a voice and connect them with a network of established art world professionals. Represented artists include established ones such as Chiharu Shiota and Goncalo Mabunda, both represented at the 56th Venice Biennale 2015 and newcomers such as Cameron Robbins or Sara Naim.

Collectionair is notably supported by a high-profile advisory board including Jean-Hubert Martin, former director of the Musée National d’Art Moderne, Paris; Philippa Adams, Director at Saatchi Gallery, London; Emmanuelle de Montgazon, Visual and performing Arts Manager at Louis Vuitton Foundation; Catherine Ugols, Art Advisor and Adelina von Furstenberg, curator of the Armenian Pavilion at the Venice Biennale 2015.